Levels of Home Care:

- Homemakers or companions can provide assistance with meal preparation, light housekeeping, laundry, errands, and other “hands-off” tasks. If the client only needs supervision or a “sitter,” this may be the appropriate level. Some home care agencies offer these services in addition to more complex services – look for the ‘@’ next to the agency name below.

- Home health aides or certified nursing assistants (CNAs), in addition to the services provided by homemakers, assist with “hands-on” personal care needs such as bathing, walking, dressing, and toileting. CNAs cannot give injections or dispense medications, though they can remind the patient to take their medication.

- Skilled nursing and other skilled services such as physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, and medical social services may be offered by some home health agencies.

Paying for Home Health Care:

Medicare provides a limited Home Health Benefit which may be available to patients following certain illnesses and injuries. It does not require prior hospitalization. Medicare usually pays for home health visits under the following circumstances:

1. The patient must need intermittent skilled nursing or therapies as well as personal care,
2. The patient must be homebound,
3. The care must be ordered by and is under the direction of a physician, and
4. The agency must be certified to provide Medicare visits.

If all these conditions are met, a home health aide approved for Medicare Home Health can assist with personal care on a limited basis (often only 1-2 hours/visit). Medicare covers the cost of this service, however this benefit is usually time-limited and is discontinued if/when the patient no longer needs skilled nursing or therapies.

Medicaid also pays for in-home aides for people who need help with personal care, under a program called Consolidated Personal Care Services (Medicaid PCS). To receive this benefit, the patient must have Medicaid, an assessment must be requested by the client’s physician, and the agency must be Medicaid-certified and provide PCS services (marked with a ~ below). PCS covers only a small number of hours of care per week (max. 80 hours/month), and primarily provides help with personal care needs such as bathing, dressing, toileting, mobility, and eating. In order to qualify, clients must have needs for hands-on assistance in at least three of these activities of daily living (ADLs). PCS cannot serve clients who only need homemaker services such as housekeeping and meal preparation or whose needs do not require hands-on assistance. For example, if the client just needs prompting or coaching to get dressed, but can put his clothes on without hands-on assistance, dressing would not count as a qualifying ADL. PCS is meant to supplement, not replace, help from family members or other caregivers. In order to arrange PCS services, the client must ask their physician to put in a request for an evaluation, which can be done online at www.nc-pcs.com/Medicaid-PCS-forms. A nurse from an independent assessment agency will then come to the patient’s home to assess what services are needed. If services are approved, the patient can choose an agency to provide the service. For more information call Liberty Healthcare Corporation at 919-322-5944.
Medicaid also offers the CAP (Community Alternatives Program) to help older and disabled adults remain in community settings rather than being placed in nursing homes. This program is for people who have low income and assets, and who are at risk of nursing home placement because of their care needs. For patients who qualify, CAP can provide extensive home-based services, but not 24-hour care. For more information, or to place someone on the wait list, call RFS Intake at 919-713-1556. NOTE: Due to budget restrictions, the CAP wait list moves very slow. At present, the wait may be more than two years.

Individuals at a nursing home level of care may also want to look at the PACE program (Program of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly), which provides comprehensive health care, including home care when needed, through community-based services. Opened in July 2013, the local PACE program may have immediate openings for new clients who qualify. See below for info.

Private Pay: Some agencies also provide services of nurses or home health aides which can be paid for privately by the patient or private insurance. These services are called private duty services. Private-pay rates for in-home aides through agencies are in the range of $15-25 per hour, usually with a 2-4 hour minimum per visit. Agencies that offer private pay services are marked with a ‘$’ in the list below.

Hospice services provide pain relief, symptom management and supportive care for persons with limited life expectancy as determined by a physician. Medicare and other insurance will pay for hospice services. Nonprofit hospice agencies may commit to provide services even if the patient can’t pay.

When contacting an agency for in-home services, obtain as much information as possible before contracting for services. All agencies with employees providing companion, sitter, respite care, or hands-on care must be licensed by the North Carolina Division of Health Services Regulation, and must meet requirements in the areas of staff qualifications, patient care, record-keeping and administration. Some agencies are also “accredited”, meaning that they have met voluntary additional standards of special accrediting bodies. If services are to be covered by Medicare or Medicaid, be sure that the agency is certified and is accepting new clients under those programs.

COMPANION PLUS REGISTRY

An alternative to hiring an agency is to hire an individual person directly to provide needed services. In this case, you are the employer and may select and negotiate wages directly with the individual providing services. Resources for Seniors, Inc. has offered a companion training class a number of times, and people who have passed that course are listed on our Companion Plus registry. Please call our Information Department for a copy of that list, or check our website at www.resourcesforseniors.com/pdf/c+list.pdf
PACE (Program of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly)

PACE programs utilize Medicare and Medicaid funding to provide comprehensive health care for eligible older adults. Once enrolled in a PACE program, the individual receives all of their healthcare through the program, including routine and specialist care, skilled therapies (physical, occupational, speech), adult day services, home care, and even nursing home or hospital care, if those become necessary. The goal of the program is to maintain the individual in a home-based setting if possible. To be eligible, an individual must be over 55, have Medicare and/or Medicaid, and be at a nursing-home level of care but be able to live safely at home with PACE supports.

HOME HEALTH AGENCIES PROVIDING SKILLED SERVICES

These agencies provide personal care (CNA or Medicaid PCS) services ONLY in the context of also providing skilled services such as nursing or physical therapy. Most of them do not provide aide services alone, and do not do private duty care except as noted. Typically, patients are referred by a physician following a hospitalization.

HOSPICE AGENCIES

Hospice agencies provide comprehensive patient care and family support for individuals with life-limiting illnesses. Many hospice services are covered by Medicare. Some hospice agencies are nonprofit agencies, while others are for-profit companies. Nonprofit agencies often have a commitment to provide care even if the patient is uninsured or unable to pay. Because volunteers are an important part of the services offered by hospices, agencies with a long-term presence in a community may be preferable. Hospice services can be provided in the patient’s home, in long-term care facilities, or in hospitals. If you need to use a hospice service in a facility, check with the facility to see if they will work with all hospice providers. Transitions LifeCare also has its own inpatient facility.
